

Thomas Clarkson addressing the 1840 Convention of the World Anti-Slavery Society in London. Clarkson and William Wilberforce, the foremost British abolitionists, led the campaign which ended the British slave trade by 1807. From a painting by Benjamin R. Haydon.